

REMESO Graduate School

Linköping University, Sweden

Courses for Swedish and International PhD and MA Students

Autumn 2014

Citizenship, Ethnic Division and Social Exclusion: National and Post-national Perspectives

17 November – 19 December 2014. On-campus week, 1-5 December.

Course Directors: Associate Professors Magnus Dahlstedt and Anders Neergaard
Guest Lecturers: TBA

This course aims to engage students in exploring and critically analysing perspectives on citizenship, the interrelations between citizenship and migration, and different models of citizenship—post-national, cosmopolitan, trans-national, etc.—beyond and below the level of the nation-state. Different conceptions of citizenship are examined in their practical translations with regard to ethnic and social exclusion/inclusion in policy making, legal frameworks and institutions. As the analysis of citizenship must go beyond the nation-state framework, the course takes a closer look at EU-led initiatives designed to combat discrimination and ethnic and social exclusion.

Deadline for applications: 24 October 2014
