Autumn 2014

Theories of Ethnicity and Nationalism: Historical and Contemporary Debates

13 October – 14 November 2014. On-campus week, 27–31 October.

Course Directors: Associate Professor Peo Hansen, REMESO and Professor Stefan Jonsson, REMESO. Guest Lecturers TBA.

This course examines key ideas and concepts underlying both historical and contemporary thinking on ethnicity and nationalism, including questions of national and ethnic identification, solidarity and mobilization, as well as theories on multiculturalism and citizenship. Students also explore recent debates on supranationalism, cosmopolitanism and the postnational. Emphasis is put on the ways in which nation and ethnicity need to be re-thought and re-historicized when confronted with issues of coloniality, postcoloniality, gender and sexuality. Questions of methodology are highlighted, addressing in particular methodological nationalism and Eurocentrism, as well as other forms of tacit methodological assumptions that have influenced research. In this way, the course also aims to strengthen students' ability to carry out empirical research.
