Spring 2015

Theories and Politics of International Migration: Understanding the Mediterranean Migration Crisis

30 March-1 May, 2015. On-Campus week 13-17 April, 2015

Course Directors: Professor Peo Hansen and Associate Professor Branka Likic-Brboric

The course explores theoretical and empirical aspects of international migration and its multidimensional character at different levels (e.g. global, regional, national and local) —including the issues of migrant incorporation, multiculturalism and integration. The course includes a focus on the Mediterranean - political instabilities, increased migration and new policies and mechanisms of border control.

Deadline March 9, 2015

International Migration, Ethnicity and Gender: Intersectional Perspectives on Labour, Power, and Citizenship

4 May-5 June, 2015. On-Campus week 18 -22 May

Course directors: Research Fellow Anna Bredström and Professor Diana Mulinari, Univ. of Lund.

This course draws on a variety of theoretical approaches to explore the centrality of gender at different levels of the migration process. It pursues an intersectional analysis of migration and focus on how articulations of class, ethnicity, gender/sexuality and generation shape the experiences of migrants across Europe.

Deadline April 13, 2015

Autumn 2015

Migration and Labour

5 October-6 November 2015, On Campus week 19-24 October

Course Directors: Professor Charles Woolfson, Associate Professors Branka Likic-Brboric and Zoran Slavnic.

This course provide an understanding of the barriers to decent work and protected labour standards in the global and European economy. Empirically, it examines the wider political economy of neo-liberalism, especially in the context of post-communist societies. These changes are in turn linked to the issue of labour migration from Eastern Europe to the core European Union older member states.

Deadline September 14, 2015

Introduction to Research Methods in Ethnic and Migration Studies

16 November - 18 December, 2015. On-Campus week 30 November - 4 December

Course Director: Associate Professor Zoran Slavnic

This course provides an introduction to research methods in social sciences as applied in studies on ethnic relations, ethnic diversity, migration, discrimination, racism and social inclusion/exclusion. The aim is to develop a critical approach and to explore solutions to some of the major methodological dilemmas.
